

Nina worked very well with her group while creating the poster about Malala Yousafzai. As part of a team research task, she confidently used her laptop to find key information and shared relevant facts with her group. Nina listened carefully to others' ideas, respected each group member's role, and contributed positively to group discussions. When decisions needed to be made, such as choosing images or organising information, she participated actively by sharing suggestions and accepting group decisions. Her cooperative attitude, effective research skills, and responsible use of technology supported the group in creating an informative and well-organised poster.
