

Creativity Reflection

What the child said

“I like the ideas on the screen, but I want to try something different.”

“Can I use other materials to make mine special?”

Teacher observation

During our outing, the children were asked to create art using clay. T approached the activity with enthusiasm and creativity, thoughtfully experimenting with different strategies he had learned previously. When the teacher showed examples on the screen for inspiration, T observed them carefully but went beyond what was shown, exploring his own ideas and incorporating additional materials, such as strings, into his artwork. While some other children followed the examples more closely, T demonstrated originality by connecting different techniques and materials to create a unique piece. Throughout the process, he applied his creative abilities in both artistic and problem-solving ways, showing imagination, resourcefulness, and confidence in expressing his ideas.
